PATIENCE. BY PHEBE CARY.

Why are we so impatient of delay, Longing forever for the time to be? For this we live to-morrow in to-day, Yea, sad to-morrow we may never see.

We are too hasty; are not reconciled
To let kind nature do her work alone;
We plant our seed, and like a foolish child
We dig it up to see if it has grown.

The good that is to be we covet now, We can not wait for the appointed hour; Before the fruit is ripe we shake the bough, And seize the bud that folds away the flower. When guidnight darkness reigns we do not see That the sad night is mother of the mern; We can not think our own sharp agony May be the birth-pang of a joy unborn. Into the dust we see our idols cast,
And cry that death has triumphed, life is void
We do not trust the promise, that the last
Of all our enemies shall be destroyed!

With rest almost in sight the spirit faints, And heart and flesh grow weary at the last; ur feet would walk the city of the saints, Even before the silent gate is passed.

Teach us to wait until Thou shall appear—
To know that all Thy ways and times are just
Thou seest that we do believe, and fear,
Lord, make us a so to believe and trust!

Not Swift's Comet.

A letter to the New York Tribune says: In the account of the comet which is now attracting popular attention, published in some of the daily papers, Prof. Swift states that it was previously discovered at Marseilles on the 17th of April. Other accounts that have appeared during the last week also assert its identity with the comet. Unless I am very much mistaken, howeve; the comet now visible is an entirely new object from that discovered April 17th, by Coggia, at Marseilles. The latter is now a few days past its perhelien, and is too near the CAUSE OF SLEEPLESSNESS, -Dr. Duckworth, in the British Medical Journal, calls attention to some causes of insomnia, which, he thinks, are hardly sufficiently recognized or adequately met by the resources of practical medicine. Why did I bring so much, did you say?

Re ent researches have clearly shown Why sir my husband wrote me that that the brain is comparatively anæmic during sleep, and that the blood thus removed from the head is more freely supplied to the viscera and integuments. The most constant cause and certainly the most frequent accompaniment of sleeplessness, is an opposite condition, or one of active and increased cerebral circulation. A species of nocturnal dyspensia, mild in its character, and prolucing no actual suff ring, may sometimes give rise to persistent insomnia.
